Established in 1968, the University of Chicago Center for Latin American Studies provides an intellectual meeting point for members of our University and extended community to study, debate, and shape the big questions surrounding Latin America. CLAS coordinates workshops, seminars and conferences; hosts visiting scholars; and provides financial support for preliminary student field research, library acquisitions, and the development of curricular materials in the less commonly taught languages of the region. In consortium with the University of Illinois at Urbana Champaign, the Center for Latin American Studies has been designated a National Resource Center by the United States Department of Education continuously since 1976. This funding provides a wide range of support, including Foreign Language and Area Studies (FLAS) fellowships. A full description of Latin American Studies programming is available at the Center’s website, http://clas.uchicago.edu. The Center sponsors various activities that contribute to the richness of Latin American Studies at the University of Chicago, including the sponsorship of major academic conferences which bring scholars from around the world to examine particular issues in Latin American studies. The Latin American Briefing Series brings renowned figures to campus for public lectures on current affairs in Latin America. The Center for Latin American Studies administers both undergraduate and graduate degree programs including a BA major program (https://clas.uchicago.edu/page/ba-major-latin-american-caribbean-studies), a BA minor program (https://clas.uchicago.edu/page/ba-minor), a BA to MA program (https://clas.uchicago.edu/page/ba-ma-program), a Master of Arts degree program (https://clas.uchicago.edu/page/about-ma-degree-program) in Latin American Studies, a Joint A.M./M.B.A. (https://clas.uchicago.edu/page/ma-program-joint-ma-programs) degree and a dual A.M in Latin American Studies/A.M. in Public Policy (https://clas.uchicago.edu/page/ma-program-joint-ma-programs).
